

Find me on Focus

South Korean presidential candidate vows to deregulate crypto like Trump-era US

South Korean presidential candidate Hong Joon-pyo says he'll remove crypto regulations similar to how they were rolled back during the Trump administration in the U.S., pledging to boost blockchain.

Find out more

Spain Launches First Bitcoin Master's Degree This April

Where certain countries are adopting digital assets, the University of the Hespérides is set to make history by launching Spain's first master's degree emphasizing specifically Bitcoin starting from April 28, 2025.

Find out more

Panama City has officially signed an agreement with Towerbank to enable crypto payments for municipal services, including taxes, fees, and permits. This move marks a significant step forward in the city's adoption of digital currencies. Residents will soon be able to pay using Bitcoin (BTC), Ethereum (ETH), USD Coin (USDC), and Tether (USDT).

Find out more

Bhutan, a country located between China and India, is becoming a leader in sustainable crypto mining. It is leveraging its natural resources for a unique economic future. According to data from Arkram Intelligence, Bhutan has mined over $600 million in Bitcoin (BTC), which was powered by entirely clean hydropower.

Find out more

Slovenia's finance ministry has proposed a 25% tax on personal profits from crypto asset disposals, seeking to close a tax system loophole that currently exempts individual investors while taxing business income from crypto trading.

Find out more

Swiss National Bank (SNB) President Martin Schlegel has warned that the country will be hit harder than most by the escalating trade war between the US and the rest of the world. In a speech on Friday at the Swiss National Bank's annual shareholder meeting in the Swiss capital, Schlegel stated that the situation is uncertain for all countries involved.

Find out more

California Assembly Bill 1052, or the "Digital Assets Bill", passed a Committee vote with bipartisan support on April 21. It was introduced by Assembly Member and Democrat Avelino Valencia in February and amended at the end of March. It aims to protect cryptocurrency users and investors by supporting their right to self-custody their digital assets.

Find out more

Just like in traditional markets populated with algorithms, in cryptocurrency markets, trading strategies can be automated using trading bots. These bots are built based on buy and sell strategies and are common in both traditional and cryptocurrency markets: Trend trading bots, arbitrage bots, coin lending bots and market making bots.

Find out more

Proof of Intelligence Beats Pump-and-Dumps

Find out more

If you're still picking coins based on hype, you're doing it wrong. The best crypto coin to invest in right now isn't the one with the loudest Twitter army — it's the one building something sustainable, with real utility and long-term incentives. While most tokens pop and vanish, leaving bag holders wondering what just happened, a few projects are actually rewriting the rules. And leading that shift is Unstaked ($UNSD) — a platform that's saying no to pump-and-dump culture and yes to smart, AI-driven, performance-based growth.